Manufacturing Process

Raw Materials - PentalQuartz is a composite of natural quartz, plus pigments and a polymer resin binder.

Mixing - These materials are mixed together using a pre-calculated formula, and spread into specific sized molds.

Compression & Kiln - The slabs are cast using exclusive and patented technology called the 'Vibrocompression Vacuum Process'. This compresses the materials under 100 tons of pressure, resulting in an impenetrable surface. The slabs are then transferred into the kiln for curing at 90° C for 45 minutes.

Finishing - The slab's surface is finished to achieve either a satin, honed, or polished look.

Quality Control - Slabs are checked to ensure each piece meets our strict quality standards.

Greenguard

PentalQuartz carries both Greenguard and Greenguard Gold certifications to ensure the highest levels of indoor air quality, and is certified to produce no VOC's or harmful off-gassing.

MICROBIAL RESISTANCE: ASTM D6329-98 (2003) Tested and Approved by GREENGUARD.

Colors marked with this symbol contain recycled material.
